I. WHAT IS THE EUROPEAN BEER CONSUMERS UNION (EBCU)?

I.1. DESCRIPTION

EBCU is the independent voice of beer drinkers across Europe, representing the rights and interests of the European beer consumer.

EBCU is a non-partisan organisation, that was formed to co-ordinate the European activities of the European national beer consumer organisations. EBCU is a volunteer organisation, is fully independent and has no financial interests in the beer industry, it exists solely to represent the interests of the beer consumer.

WELCOME

EBCU welcomes membership from any organisation who are willing to support EBCU's aims and objectives

(as outlined in EBCU's Constitution):

- To represent the interests of beer consumers
- The promotion and preservation of Europe's beer culture
- The promotion and preservation of traditional beer styles
- The promotion and protection of diversity and consumer choice
- To enhance the image of beer in Europe
- To support traditional brewing
- To support the introduction of progressive beer duty across Europe
- To encourage the appreciation of beers from other countries and traditions
- To encourage socially responsible drinking in a licensed environment
- To establish and promote networking, exchange of knowledge and expertise between member organisations

I.2. EBCU HISTORY AND FOCUS

Beer drinking has long been an essential part of European culture. For centuries Europeans have brewed and traded beer, developing a variety of styles and adapted their methods to the latest developments in technology.

As Europe became increasingly politically integrated and with the advent of the European Parliament, the need for a consumers' union representing beer consumers at the European level became apparent.

EBCU was formed at a beer festival in 1990 with the aim of bringing together organisations representing beer drinkers and consumers from across Europe. Originally, EBCU consisted of just three organisations - CAMRA (UK), founded in 1971 - PINT (Netherlands), founded in 1980 - and OBP (Objective Beer Tasters, Belgium), founded in 1984.

Since then EBCU has grown and now enjoys membership from 18 organisations from 16 countries.

The early years focused on attracting more members, writing EBCU's constitution, defining what goals to achieve, achieving financial independence and developing campaigning activities at the European level. Now EBCU enjoys a wider membership and focuses on campaigning for greater rights for consumers.

I.3. EUROPEAN RULES & REGULATIONS

The regulatory agenda for the coming years is filled with various relevant issues for beer consumers: International trade agreements, consumer information for alcoholic beverages compared to other food products, distribution schemes for retail and online sales, and food legislation that may affect specific beer styles. Joining EBCU will therefore give your organisation greater influence on European decision making and provide your organisation the opportunity to shape future policy.

A typical example is EU Regulation 1169/2011, covering the provision of food information to consumers, including what could, or should not, be on the label, including those of alcoholic drinks.

Another example might also be taxation, and (in particular) excise rates, where a minimum rate has been decided for beer at European level, at a higher level than other alcoholic beverages.

These are two key areas which EBCU is currently campaigning on. For more information about these campaigns, please visit: www.ebcu.org

I.4. ECONOMIC RATIONALE

The world of beer is changing rapidly. Much of this change has been positive; we have witnessed an explosion of new independent breweries emerge across Europe in recent years. There are now a greater number of breweries in Europe than for a century or more. On the other hand, by the end of 2016, one-third of all the world's beer will be made or commissioned by a single company. This will have negative consequences for beer consumers. EBCU has identified three principal aims, of interest to all beer drinkers:

Cost: ensuring beer prices are fair - including taxation and ingredients and method of production

Diversity: preserving beer styles and cultures - from Reinheitsgebot to craft Gose, IPA and Gruit beers

Information: ensuring the consumer is provided with correct facts about the beers content and origin

1.5. HELP AND SUPPORT NATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

National organisations also have an important role to play in upholding these aims. EBCU facilitates support between member organisations through organising frequent membership meetings which allow the sharing of best practices on issues ranging from the use of social media and engaging your volunteer base.

2. WHAT DOES EBCU DO?

2.1. REPRESENTATION AT EUROPEAN LEVEL

The political decisions taken on the European level have a direct impact on beer consumers across Europe. EBCU allows the various national beer consumer groups of Europe to more effectively campaign and lobby the European Commission and European Parliament.

This is done via the following channels:

- Monitoring of different European Union activities
- Lobbying activities, via meetings with European Commission officials, European Parliament members and/or their staff, European Economic and Social Committee members, etc.
- Contacts with relevant European associations such as The Brewers of Europe or BEUC (Bureau Européen des Unions de Consommateurs)
- Membership to relevant organisations such as ECAS (European Citizen Action Service)
- Regular attendance at consumer policy and citizenship related meetings and events, organized by various European institutions and civil society organisations
- Host a popular reception every year in Brussels attended by European Commission officials, European Parliament members, Permanent Representations representatives and industry bodies.

2.2. RESONATE THE VOICE OF THE EUROPEAN BEER CONSUMER

Beyond meetings and events, EBCU also shares its views via other activities and social media actions, such as:

- EBCU Manifesto
- The EBCU Website www.ebcu.org
- Press releases
- Twitter, Facebook
- LinkedIn thematic group
- Campaigning and information material
- Frequent meetings with industry bodies and parliamentarians

2.3. COORDINATE MEMBER MEETINGS

Meetings take place twice a year to bring together the different membership organisations of EBCU. The meetings are to host workshops led by industry professionals, share best practices and to discuss and launch campaigns.

The meetings have been taking place in Brussels and various European countries, allowing the attending delegates to obtain relevant knowledge, increase partnerships and develop their understanding of other European beer cultures.

3. HOW ARE WE ORGANIZED?

EBCU has an informal structure. Its members are national organisations, which benefit from working within EBCU to coordinate their European level campaigns.

General Meetings are held twice a year, with each of the member organisations represented by a determined number of delegates.

EBCU's day-to-day activities are managed by the EBCU Secretary and Executive. The Executive is composed of five members, each with a specific role, who take care of EBCU activities on a voluntary, unpaid basis.

Bo L. Jensen	André Brunnsberg	Angeline Drouant	Rianne Josse	Claus-Christian Carbon
(Denmark)	(Finland)	(Spain)	(The Netherlands)	(Germany)

Alongside the regular General meetings, EBCU member organisations work together to provide information on individual campaigns and share best practice. This is encouraged by the Executive to ensure that members make the most from their membership.

Members are granted access to a document repository system, which contains all the relevant resources for the organisation.
